We faced a series of blooded challenges. As a result of partition, the population like a whole nation transferred from the sides of borders. It seemed that the body was divided into two parts where bleeding could not be controlled. Everything was so mashed that it was becoming difficult to see it clearly anything. The problem of refugees and princely states were not giving the chance to our government to concentrate to the proper execution of government. The old brick of partition was spoiling. The new land of independent India so it was very difficult to establish new system of political government. The expectation of public was so high the sky was looking very down.

Sometimes I thought how difficult was it that time to sell all type of flowers, variety of smells, diverse features all together in the only vase of, single vase of unity. Along with the unity our leaders had to think about their development also. From farmers to industries, teachers to professionals, craftsman to intellectuals everybody was in search of the way of development. Unity and development of the country were the two sides of a coin if until the diversities were not healed up , development could not be achieved. Because if we will not think all together will not work together , will not serve our nation together till then we won 't be able to do good enough . So it was to do be done necessarily .
