

FOCUS POINT –A LITTLE FISH STORY

If you feel you have too little with you then you must know how to be happy with what you have. If you feel you have too many sorrows. Just look around wherever you go. You will surely find many who are in even worse conditions. Their eyes would murmur in your ears that you are much better than many people around you. They would teach you not to complain about your belongings and fate as you are still better than many who don't even have what you have. This way, you can be happy with what you have but this doesn't apply to hard work and growth.
